MALCOLM DOUGLAS TROOPY RESTORATION

When legendary Australian adventurer Malcolm Douglas passed away in 2010, his faithful Troopy sat for years rotting away, until the Douglas family made the decision that it needed a full restoration.

The team from Rust Worx in WA have spent many hours have been spent replacing panels and seals, taking off the roof for repairs, and of course putting it all back together again. A new paint job has made it look the way it did when it was new, and of course the vehicle has been kitted out with all the latest accessories.

The new restoration included works with Malcolm's old sponsors – as well as some new ones. Engel, Tyrepower, Supafit Seat Covers, ARB, Terrain Tamer 4WD all contributed products for the restoration.

Malcolm Douglas will always be remembered as a pioneer in 4WDing and camping films. In the 1960s, Malcolm set off in the bush with a vehicle and a camera and never looked back! He made many films and documentaries during his time, many of which are still watched and cherished today. And now Malcolm's grandson Owen is stepping in to keep the journey alive!
